9. Coins. About one hundred coins of gold, silver, or bronze, have been added to our Helbig collection to lay a broader foundation for the study of numismatics.

No one of these objects represents the outlay of any very large sum; in fact, all of them together have not cost as much as has often been paid for a fine statue. But, as working material for students of Greek and Roman antiquity, such collections as this have a value hardly to be measured and, when properly exhibited and labelled, do effective teaching every hour of the day.

In view of the fact that the annual meeting of the Classical Association of the Middle States and Maryland is soon to be held in Washington and a majority of those who will attend must pass through Baltimore, I desire to extend to all the members a most cordial invitation to visit the University and inspect the collection, which is now exhibited on the third floor of McCoy Hall.

Essential Latin Lessons, $1.00

By A. W. Roberts of the Brookline Mass. High School and Prof. John D. Rolfe of the University of Penn.

The experience of a college professor and practical high school man unites in a successful endeavor to solve the many perplexing problems of first year Latin. Correlation of the study of English and Latin Grammar, the frequent review lessons, presentation of the verb by tense stems, the practical working vocabulary are distinctive features.
